

Bloomberg Law: Verizon's Insurers Owe $24 Million in Debt Deal Legal Costs

Verizon Communications Inc. won a ruling letting it tap an AIG unit and other insurers for $24 million in defense costs it racked up in litigation over a 2008 debt transaction.

Verizon Communications Inc. won a ruling letting it tap an AIG unit and other insurers for $24 million in defense costs it racked up in litigation over a 2008 debt transaction.

A liability policy meant to protect business dealings between Verizon and once-bankrupt FairPoint Communications contains terms that require the insurers to cover legal expenses in a "fraudulent transfer" lawsuit brought by FairPoint's trustee, a Delaware state court held Tuesday.

Click here to read the full article.

Related People

Robin Cohen

Keith McKenna

Meredith Elkins