

Insurance recovery lawyer lifts lid on COVID BI claims

A nationally renowned insurance recovery group, led by noted policyholder advocate Robin Cohen, has launched its own law firm. In January, Cohen Ziffer Frenchman & McKenna opened in New York with over 20 lawyers and staff, many of whom have worked together for more than 20 years at prestigious litigation firms, recovering billions of dollars for policyholder clients and securing landmark judicial rulings.

Cohen most recently led the insurance recovery practice at trial firm McKool Smith, where she worked alongside her longtime partners Adam Ziffer, Kenneth Frenchman and Keith McKenna. The group has earned a national reputation as fierce advocates for policyholders in high-profile disputes against insurance companies with the biggest monetary stakes.
