My Approach

I bring a great breadth of knowledge to my practice, and perform in-depth analyses before crafting a course of action that plots our moves several steps ahead. By being highly strategic, I'm able to give my clients practical advice about what is likely to happen and how their matters will unfold, which allows us to eliminate surprises and put the best plan in place from the very start.

Overview

Known for his ardent advocacy in complex and highly consequential cases, Keith McKenna represents clients in a wide range of general commercial litigation. As counsel for companies in industries including healthcare, manufacturing, telecommunications, sports and entertainment, government services, and real estate, Keith handles a wide-range of commercial disputes in federal and state court actions nationwide. The organizations Keith serves frequently rely on him to represent them in significant insurance coverage litigations and trials that procure damages and declaratory judgments in their favor against U.S. and European property and casualty insurers.

Viewing his clients' issues as his own, Keith always strives to solve their problems efficiently, recover money they're due, and bolster their business interests.
